Act I

It's a cozy Christmas Eve at the Stahlbaum's house. Their house is decorated with Christmas ornaments, wreaths, stockings, mistletoe and in the center of it all, a majestic Christmas tree. As Clara Stahlbaum and her family prepare for their annual Christmas party, she waits anxiously for her friends to arrive. When Clara's guests arrive, the party picks up with dancing and celebration. A mysterious guest arrives dressed in dark clothing. Clara knows he is Godfather Herr Drosselmeyer, the toymaker. His surprise arrival is warmly accepted and all the children dance and carry on with laughter later enjoying the entertainment of his magical tricks and wind up dolls. Dr. Drosselmeyer brings a special gift for Clara - a wooden Nutcracker.

The party grows late and the children become sleepy. Everyone generously thanks the Stahlbaum's before they leave. Once all the guests have departed and the house is asleep, Clara, in search of her Nutcracker doll, sneaks downstairs and ends up falling asleep by the Christmas tree with the Nutcracker beside her. At the stroke of midnight, Clara wakes up to a frightening scene. The house and tree seem to get larger. Is she shrinking? Out of nowhere large mice, led by the Mouse King, begin to circle the room. Life-size toy soldiers, led by her valiant Nutcracker, come to her rescue and battle the mouse army. Mouse King traps the Nutcracker in the corner, but the Nutcracker can't overcome Mouse King's strength. Clara makes a desperate move to save her Nutcracker from defeat and throws her slipper at Mouse King. She hits him directly in the head! The Nutcracker is able to overcome the stunned Mouse King and claims victory. The mice army quickly carries away their King. Following the battle victory, the Nutcracker is transformed into a handsome prince. The Nutcracker Prince turns the Stahlbaum's house into the snowy forest. The Snow Queen dances with the snowflakes who have turned into graceful dancing maidens. Clara and Nutcracker Prince then depart for the Land of Sweets in an enchanted sleigh.

Act II

After their magical journey through the snow forest, they come to their destination in the Land of Sweets. Clara can't believe her eyes; giant gingerbread men, candies with whipped cream whiter than snow, sweetly glazed flowers and butter-cream frosting everywhere she looks. Upon their arrival, they are greeted by the Sugar Plum Fairy. As they reenact the night's events, the Sugar Plum Fairy becomes impressed with Clara's bravery and the Nutcracker's heroism. In their honor, they are treated like royalty and presented with every imaginable sweet. Shortly thereafter, the dancing begins.

Hot coco dances to the lively music of trumpets and castanets of the Spanish fandango, followed by the dance of the Mirliton. Mandarin tea dances to an exotic Asian flute chorus, while coffee dances and moves her body like a rising steam to an Arabian song. Matroishkas (Russian dolls) follow the steamy Arabian leaping and dancing to an invigorating Russian Trepak.

Soon after, the dancing flowers enter to the tune of the harp. Perhaps the most beautiful waltz she has ever heard, Clara and the Nutcracker Prince watch with amazement. The flowers dance in beautiful mesmerizing patterns as a single Dewdrop floats above them.

Silence quickly follows. Clara doesn't know what to expect next. The Sugar Plum Fairy then dances the most recognizable song in the entire work. The captivating fairy dances lighter than air. This beautiful dance completes Clara's most perfect evening. The festival concludes when everyone comes together on the court and bids Clara and the Nutcracker Prince farewell. She tells the Nutcracker Prince she wishes the adventure would never end and he tells her it won't for those who have an eye to see it.

Clara wakes up the next morning by the Christmas tree with her Nutcracker still by her side.
